The Minister of Finance has developed, and Cabinet has approved, a policy framework for the governance of British Columbia Crown agencies. The purpose of the Crown Agency Accountability System is to provide Crown agencies with superior means to achieve government's policy and performance expectations in an open, transparent and accountable manner. The System clarifies and details the respective roles of government (as the Shareholder and mandating body for Crown agencies) and Boards of directors (as the stewardship/ management body with fiduciary responsibility for Crown agency operations). Effective governance aids government and Crown agencies by ensuring that Crown agencies focus on those activities necessary to fulfill their mandates and that they are managed in the public interest.

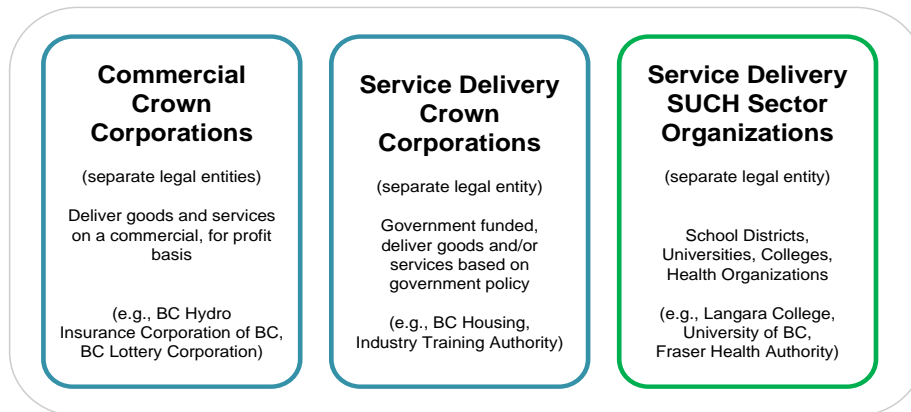

The Crown Agencies Resource Office, Ministry of Finance, maintains a registry of British Columbia's Crown agencies. These are public sector organizations, other than ministries, within the Province's government reporting entity. Crown agencies are administered at varying levels of independence from government, but are within government's ultimate control under standards defined by the Canadian Public Sector Accounting Board Handbook. The financial and legal tests for control include, but are not limited to, government's appointment or removal of a majority of the Board, holding the majority of shares, access to assets, or responsibility for obligations.

Not all of British Columbia's approximately 200 Crown agencies are subject to the same governance and accountability requirements. Application of the Crown Agency Accountability System to each Crown agency will depend on its function and classification (as defined by applicable government control mechanisms). Functionally, government may establish a Crown agency to deliver goods and services on a commercial or for-profit basis, or to deliver goods and services based on government policy and funding, or to serve as a decision-making or advisory body to government and the public. A Crown agency's classification depends on its level of operational independence and decision-making authority and in the planning, performance reporting and oversight requirements established by the shareholder.

Commercial and Service Delivery Crown Corporations are separate legal entities, subject to all aspects of the governance and accountability requirements of the Crown Agency Accountability System. SUCH sector organizations (e.g., schools, universities, colleges and health authorities) are also separate legal entities, but are subject to accountability frameworks developed by SUCH sector ministries (Ministries of Advanced Education, Education, and Health), including financial and performance reporting requirements. While SUCH sector organizations are exempt from the service plan and annual service plan report requirements established in the Budget Transparency and Accountability Act, they do prepare business plans and reports based on established practices. Labour relations and human resource policies applicable to the Ministries Responsible also apply to SUCH sector organizations. School Boards, as elected bodies, are exempt from government's Board appointment process.

Crown agencies within the government reporting entity

The Crown agency registry is provided in two forms:

- ✓ Crown agencies (in the government reporting entity), by Classification; and
- ✓ Crown agencies (in the government reporting entity), by Minister Responsible.

Please note where an organization is shown in italics, this represents a subsidiary of the parent organization.
